WHO WE ARE

Changing Lives on the Ice

Colorado Sled Hockey is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit — 100% volunteer run — providing adaptive sled hockey to 50+ athletes with physical disabilities across Colorado. Our athletes come from across the state, practice near Denver, and travel to tournaments nationwide. It's an incredible community to be part of.

For many of our players, the sled is more than hockey — it's freedom. Athletes who use wheelchairs every day move and compete on equal footing once they're on the ice. Jackson Henderson, 14, and Tucker Hall, 10, take the ice every week because someone made it possible.

Clayton Simon, age 11, lights up the ice with the biggest smile in the building. Mitchell Wennberg, 13, has stick work that rivals players twice his age. Ryan Strong became disabled as an adult — for him, the ice is how he stays active and connected. Malik Jones grew up in Aurora with both legs amputated as an infant and found his sport with CSH. And Jerry DeVaul, a U.S. Army veteran who lost both legs in a mining accident, found purpose through sled hockey — he tried it in 2016 and it changed his life. "You give someone a purpose," Jerry says, "and you never know what they can turn into." Many of our adult players are veterans — competing at the United States Air Force Academy means something different to them.

Your sponsorship funds ice time, equipment, coaching, and tournament travel for every one of them.

Be Part of Something Real.

This is not a logo placement. This is Knox, 12, and Miller, 8, on the ice — equal to anyone in the rink. This is Jack, 8, traveling to his first tournament. This is a disabled veteran getting a second chance at an active life and supportive community. This is Jordy, a teenage amateur sports announcer who knows more hockey stats than Doc Emrick.

Your sponsorship funds ice time, equipment, travel, and the chance for 50+ Colorado athletes with physical disabilities to compete at the highest level.

▲ Headlining and Gold tiers are limited — 1-2 spots available.
